

Getting Great Execution of What Matters Most to You: FOCUS Products and Services

How Do I Keep Everyone Moving in the Right Direction – Even When That Direction Changes?

HounDog™

Keeping up with all of the commitments made by individuals in your organization, regardless of its size, can be a daunting task. HounDog™ is a web-based storehouse that provides convenient, controlled access to critical information about the strategic and operational performance of functions, teams and individuals in a single view. No more paper. No more wondering, “do I have the most current information?” And as the leader, you have a view into the performance of every individual in your organization; no secrets, no surprises.

As an individual, you can see how others on your team are performing against their commitments and objectives, and identify ways in which you can help them achieve success – without being asked. As a team leader, you have a view into how your team is performing collectively and as individuals, how peer-level teams are doing, and likewise for others in direct line to you vertically through the organization. As the business leader, you can see it all.

As the business leader, you have the ability to drill down and check the status of any division, department, function, team or individual in the organization. Look at summary statistics or detailed breakouts of performance, at your choosing, sorted the way you want to see it (by due date, checkpoint status or owner).

After all, you are the leader.

HounDog™ tracks measured performance against objectives and uses status codes (green, yellow and red) to allow you to quickly determine whether items are “on track”, “at risk” or “off track” and focus in on those that require attention. Likewise, actions and tasks that are approaching or have passed their target completion dates can be highlighted. Conversations about performance can be far less casual, far more focused on critical items, and far more effective at making the right things happen.

With HounDog™, individuals are accountable not only for delivering results, but for keeping their performance status information up to date. Frequent updates keep the most important “to do” items (actions, tasks and objectives) top of mind for everyone – and further increases the likelihood that critical priorities get the attention and focus they deserve while other, less important tasks are handled appropriately.

Which, in the end, is the whole point.
